Packing Tips for Living Room

A living room comprises a variety of items such as furniture, lamps, electronics, decoratives, artworks, etc., which would require different kinds of packing procedures.

The best way to start packing things properly is to create an inventory. Inventory will help you in arranging things properly from packing to loading and unloading and rearranging things at your new place.

Sort things out

Separate out things that you have in your living room, group them into electronics, breakables, wall-hangings, rugs, furniture, etc. you intend to move them with you. Once they are grouped, you can divide them and start packing them individually.

Electronics

Let's start with the most fragile things in the living room. Electronics require proper disassembling and secure arrangements. Before you unplug the accessories, click pictures, it helps in connecting the cables after the transit.

Wrap the electronics with bubble wraps and secure the cables with twist ties. As you wrap the items, ensure the lighter ones are on the top and are secured with anti-static materials. Pack the sensitive hardware like TV, monitors with towels. Put the remote of TV, DVD, CD, or mouse of PC in a separate box and seal them, so that you don't misplace them during transit. Pack the speakers in hard cardboard boxes or use their original boxes as they are meant to protect them.

[illegible]

The living room is the space where you place your lavish furniture like sofa, chairs, coffee tables, or upholstered pieces, and the furniture needs dismantling of the parts and empty the drawers (if any). Wrap the furniture/parts of furniture with bubble wraps to ensure the surface of the furniture is not damaged or scratched. As you pack the parts in the carton, you can secure them with cushions and pillows. Also, do not forget to collect all the screws and pack them in a zip pouch and place it safely inside the carton. Furniture are large in size and there are chances you might hurt yourself when you move them, hiring packers and movers might help in making relocation easy and simple.

Rugs

Rugs do not mostly require much attention during transit. Get the rugs cleaned by professional cleaners before packing and moving them. Wrap the rugs with opaque material to ensure they are safe in case of sun exposure anyway. Alternatively, rugs can also be used to wrap and protect fragile items from breaking.

Fragile Items

Fragile decoratives, artworks, mirrors, and lamps, or light decorations need special care. Wrap them with bubble wrappers, or old tees or tank tops or towels, also double wrap them if required. Remove the bulbs from the lamp. Place the well-wrapped items in the cartons and fill the empty space with papers and packing peanuts to ensure they are safe inside.
