Here, a commission member asks a Guantánamo detainee what his charges are and whether he has attorneys. Two of the eight men held at Guantánamo Bay as part of the U.S. detention program in Cuba are known to have been tortured. This undated image shows them, in the back row, with other prisoners. Guantánamo Bay's chief prosecutor, Brig. Gen. Mark S. Martins, is shown standing in a doorway at the U.S. prison. He is on the left, wearing sunglasses, holding a video camera. At the time of the photos in February 2002, it was believed he was only the chief prosecutor, but his job description was expanded in May 2002. A 2004 photograph shows an unidentified man being held in an orange jumpsuit in what appears to be a U.S. detention facility. The head of the Guantánamo Bay prison is being held by U.S. forces in Iraq and is not being held there, the Pentagon says.
